

How do you ensure your music program thrives, even when funds dwindle?

Give supporters something they can both see and hear!

If your music budget is getting tight, you have to be creative to get the music you need. Use Pepper's online Music Lists to post the music you need, allowing your supporters to buy music easily for your organization. You may want to acknowledge the gift online and perhaps in concert programs. Or, maybe a Pepper Gift Card is the right donation to your organization.

Music Lists

It's easy to tell them what you need!

Create an online Music List that your supporters can access again and again. Simply create the list and share the unique list name with anyone you wish. You can even post information or a note of thanks about each piece right on the list!

*Add comments to each title!
Give recognition
to your supporters!*

First, tell them what you need

1. Create a Music List for your organization at jwpepper.com/musiclists
2. Announce the Music List to people likely to support your efforts to build your music library. (Download our Music List announcement brochure for FREE!)
3. As music is purchased for your organization, post a note of thanks on your list. You may even want to list the donation in your program or include a "donated by" label on the cover of the music for future acknowledgements.
